Table of contents

List of Tables and Maps 7
List of Photographs 7
Acknowledgments 8
A note on Shuar orthography 13
Glossary of selected terms 14
Acronyms 14
Chapter 1. Introduction 16
Prologue 16
Between ontology and the teleology of the state: a third plural model 21
Thinking up the indigenous model of sociality 29
Fieldwork in the making 36
The central margins of Shuar territory 36
Living and working in Makuma 42
Chapter Outline 49
Chapter 2 – Antecedents of community life 52
Pre-centro social organisation 56
Pre-centro livelihoods 58
Republican colonialism: the missions ahead 59
The "Golden Years" of Makuma 63
Peace, trade and cattle: the birth of cooperatives 66
From cooperatives to centros 73
The decline of the mission, the rise of ethno-politics: Shuar within and against the state 80
Conclusion 90
Chapter 3. Towards a better life 92
The good life and its discontents 95
Brief notes on social classification and relatedness 95
Coordinates of the good life: self-sufficiency, autonomy, and mutuality 99
The good life as a receding horizon: the decline of Makuma 105
Efficacious work and getting ahead 109

Visions for life: an enduring device for acquiring power 109
Parental counsel for a better life 114
Conclusion 119
Chapter 4. The moral force of the community: controlling conflict as socios 122
Joys and sorrows of gathering in centros 123
The enemy within: secrecy in the centro 127
The 'clear speech' of socios: tools of harmony in the making 133
Communities as embryonic states or indigenous institutions in the making? 143
Membership rules in the making: an illustration 146
On being president, or 'authority' in the centro 149
Conclusion 153
Chapter 5. The centro as a cooperative unit: a nascent ideology of public wealth 156
From the state to the house: predation at work 157
Work, productiveness and autonomy 157
The art of multiplying wealth: paperwork and brokerage 162
Projects and contracts: wealth in the centro 170
De-collectivising community projects: autonomy and mutuality at work 170
The community as client: working for the sake of progress 173
Conclusion 182
Chapter 6: The Festival of the Centro. Re-presenting formal order 186
Preparing the Scene 189
Appropriating otherness in the past and the present 189
Internal organisation: cooperation and redistribution 191
The Festival 198
First theme: the commendation of joy and social harmony 201
Second theme: unity through competition 207
Third theme: hospitality for the sake of progress 219
Conclusion 223
Chapter 7: The scholarly tradition 225

Cultural Knowledge at school 228
Crafting culture 231
The roots of cultural education 235
The scholarly tradition 240
'Typical' dance as scholarly tradition 242
Conclusion 247
Chapter 8 - Teachers at work: programming community life 250
The drive for equality and progress 252
Discipline, formality and authority 254
Programming community life 262
School community events: learning collective work and entrepreneurialism 265
Civic ceremonies: the performance of unity 267
Practicing social harmony through agreements 272
Conclusion 276
Conclusion 281
Appendix 295
Appendix 1 – Correspondence with evangelical missionaries (Avant Ministries) 295
Appendix 2 – Letter from the teniente praising the work of evangelical mission. 1954 296
Appendix 3 – Petitions by Kuamar directive council requesting 'incentives' for the festival 298
Appendix 4 – 'Act of commitment', agreement of work between socios of Pampants and affluent donor 299
Appendix 5 – Terms of reference. 300
Bibliography 301